

WE ARE ALL CO-CONSPIRATORS

The RNC 8 are eight activists being prosecuted for their work organizing protests at the 2008 Republican National Convention. They were swept up in preemptive raids and arrests prior to the convention and detained for most of it, preventing them from participating in the very protests they had spent over a year building towards.

The Eight were originally charged under the Minnesota PATRIOT Act for conspiracy "in the furtherance of terrorism." Through a public pressure campaign, those charges were dropped. But they are still facing charges of "Conspiracy to Commit Riot" and "Conspiracy to Commit Criminal Damage to Property." Until they are challenged and defeated, these charges are a threat not only to the RNC8, but to anyone who dreams of a different world. This October, join us as we converge on the trial in St. Paul, Minnesota.
